

Board answers lawsuit, denies claims

By Larry Rowell
Editor

An attorney representing the Casey County Board of Education and Casey County Middle School Principal Kathy Fogle has filed an answer to a lawsuit alleging political maneuvering in its hiring practices.

BOE attorney Winter Huff filed the response on Aug. 23 in the Casey County Circuit Clerk's office.

Lebanon attorney Theodore Lavitt, who represents Cassandra Elmore and Angela Rodgers, filed suit on their behalf on Aug. 12.

The suit alleges that plaintiffs Elmore and Rodgers, certified teachers in positions in Lincoln County and Russell County, respectively, weren't interviewed for a science position at CCMS for the 2013-14 school year by the CCMS Site-Base Council.

Instead, the suit states, Elmore, who holds a Rank I and Rodgers, who has a Rank II, were passed over when Fogle — without consulting the site-based council — hired a candidate whom Lavitt said didn't have the credentials for the job.

The BOE's response begins by asking the suit be dismissed on the basis that Elmore and Rodgers don't have "standing" to pursue claims against the defendants. Also, Huff asserts that the suit be thrown out on the basis of the doctrine of sovereign or governmental immunity, protection offered to state agencies against lawsuits.

Deny

In addressing the specifics of the plaintiffs' allegations that the hiring of "an unqualified teacher" in July to teach science was done illegally by Fogle without consulting the middle school site-based council members, and that the hiring was contrary to law in the issuance of an emergency certificate to the teacher, Huff denies these allegations.

Also, the response states it's without "sufficient information to either admit or deny the plaintiffs' claims seeking a court order directing the BOE to offer immediate employment to the plaintiffs, one or the other, and if the plaintiffs have suffered "extreme emotional harm and distress" as a result of not being interviewed or hired.

Further, the BOE is asking that Elmore and Rodgers pay the board's legal fees and expenses and any other relief that they may be entitled to.

Casey Middle teacher cited on drug charge

By Larry Rowell
Editor

A science teacher at Casey County Middle School has been cited for growing marijuana and being in possession of drug paraphernalia.

John R. Price, 38, of 347 Sharps Hollow Road, Liberty, was cited at 3 p.m. on Aug. 27 by Chief Steven Garrett and charged with marijuana cultivation, less than five plants, and possession of drug paraphernalia, court records state. Both charges are misdemeanors.

Garrett said that Price admitted to growing the lone 6-foot tall plant in the edge of the woods at Price's house in the Brookside Heights subdivision off Woodrum Ridge. In addition, Price had several pipes, pipe cleaners, and rolling papers, according to a court citation.

Hired in July to teach science, Price has been suspended by Casey County School Superintendent Marion Sowders pending the outcome of a district investigation.

"The district investigation has to do with the code of ethics and of professional behavior," Sowders said.

At the conclusion of the investigation, Sowders said that the board of education could either reprimand Price publicly or privately, or suspend him with or without pay, or terminate him.

"When I feel like we have all the facts that relate to his duties here, we'll make a decision," Sowders said.

Price is scheduled to appear in Casey District Court on Sept. 17.

Public a 'no show' at BOE tax hearing

By Larry Rowell
Editor

If county residents don't like their taxes to increase, it wasn't evident at the public hearing on Thursday night at the Casey County Board of Education office.

Advertised the previous two weeks in order for residents to voice their support or concern, no county taxpayers — other than BOE members — attended the meeting in which the board voted to increase the tax rate by 4 percent.

A 4 percent increase does not mean that residents' taxes will be increased by 4 percent, it means that the estimated revenue from the tax will be increased by 4 percent.

As he did in the Aug. 12 regular meeting, Vice-Chairman John Cox cast the lone vote opposing the tax rate increase.

"The reason I voted against it, I know that we need the money, but even the people paying the taxes,

Getting active at JPES

Fitness and good health are important lessons to learn, according to Todd Carman, who's been teaching elementary school physical education classes for 19 years. Here, Carman speaks to a PE class at Jones Park Elementary School.

Carman pushes physical health for students

By Larry Rowell
Editor

Wearing jeans, tennis shoes, and with a whistle hung around his neck, Todd Carman looks like a physical education teacher as he runs elementary aged students through exercises before they play volleyball.

He runs them through the drills of pushups, squats, and some type of high kicks before ordering a couple of laps inside the gym.

One overweight fifth-grader slows to a walk before the end of the first of two laps.

Having taught physical education for the past 19 years at Middleburg Elementary and now at Jones Park Elementary, Carman knows the importance of kids getting, and staying, fit. And being active is not just something done on a school schedule for a couple of hours a week.

"Every nine weeks it's a different schedule. Some classes get PE for two hours a week and some get it for an hour a week and then they switch for the next nine weeks," Carman said, adding that he would like to see more time devoted to PE class.

"When I first started at Middleburg, we were doing five days a week so every PE class had 30 to 40 minutes a day," he said.

Carman said that in the limited amount of time that he has, he tries to make PE fun for the kids by changing the activities they do during the school year.

He even created a Web site — www.jonespark-physicaleducation.yolasite.com — so students and parents can know what activities will be offered.

The mission statement on the site states: "to provide several creative, fun, and challenging opportunities through physical activity that will increase student's health, team work, and chances for a healthy lifestyle."

The site lists 20 different games such as volleyball, dodge ball, basketball skills, kick ball, and capture the flag, among others.

By being creative in class and making PE fun, Carman hopes that kids in his K-6 grade classes will continue to be active outside of school.

"I talk to kids about being active. I'll tell a kid, 'You need to sign up for football, or I might tell a girl that she's really good at volleyball and she should try out for the middle school volleyball team,'" Carman said.

As he leads a class through stretching exercises, Carman asks the 17 kids present how many are involved in team sports outside of school. Seven raise their hands.

"That's not too bad, about 40 percent, but it can be better," he said.

Carman also spends time teaching the rules of the games the students play such as what the red line means in a volleyball game and how many times a player can hit the ball at the same time in volleyball.

Still, for Carman, it's all about the students and their health and well-being.

"I try to push them in the right direction and get them active," he said.

What to do with this hair?

Have you seen my hair this summer? I feel like a big dandelion that's gone to seed. I look like a big dandelion that's gone to seed. When the humidity is high and when I sweat, my hair turns into a mess of waves and frizz. In winter it's more manageable.

I have been on a crusade to find a shampoo and conditioner that will tame the mess. If you've been to a drugstore or Walmart lately, you undoubtedly came away from the shampoo and conditioner aisle as perplexed as I was. There are dozens of different types.

You will find moisturizing or hydrating shampoos, volumizing shampoos, clarifying shampoos, keratinizing shampoos, chelating (swimmer's) shampoos, dry shampoos, and shampoos that use silicones or oils to smooth frizzy hair.

Then there are the other products you can put on your hair to tame the frizz. I bought some years ago that actually worked. Do they make it any longer? Heck, no!

I went on the Internet to see what I could find. Boy, oh boy, is that an interesting bit of research. I found all those I mentioned above but things got really detailed. Did you know there is something called cruelty-free shampoo? Yeah, baby, no animal parts rendered and used. Did you know there is vegetarian/vegan shampoo? Did you know there is organic shampoo? Folks, have we completely lost our common sense? Would you believe that I actually found one shampoo that sells for $184.96 for a 34-ounce bottle? Ridiculous! I don't care what the beauty experts say, if you spend even a tenth of that for shampoo, I personally think you're an idiot.

Back in the dark ages (when I was a kid) people didn't shampoo their hair but about once a week. Some went longer than that. Not nice! You could smell them coming a mile away. All that scalp oil and dead skin cells can get really odoriferous. I remember people using talcum powder or cornmeal in their hair to get rid of the oil but it didn't get rid of the stink. Just ask any hairdresser.

Back in those days we used lye soap or castile soap to wash our hair. To get the soap film off, we rinsed our hair with a mixture of water and a little vinegar. Talk about shiny hair! We had shiny hair. We also used something else that very few of the younger crowd know about today — rainwater.

Instead of fancy, expensive hot oil treatment products, we used olive oil. The funny part was that the bathroom closet looked like you were going to make a salad. Olive oil and vinegar in the bathroom? Yep, Rachael Ray, EVOO is not just for cooking. What a hoot!

However, there is an exception in the statutes for someone who has relations with a 16-year-old kid if the adult is providing a foster home for the minor 16 year old.

We think today that these things are horrible and they are, I won't argue that point. But for some of you older readers, marriage in Kentucky and in rural areas was not uncommon when a girl was 13 or 14 years of age.

Granted, that's marriage, but I think it would be difficult for most parents today to envision their 14-year-old daughter getting married.

But back to transmitting sexual content by electronic means, which seems to be the way many young people are communicating with each other.

I've been reading articles where kids, under the age of 18, are sending "sexts," text messages on their cell phones with sexual images or content.

Parents should talk to their kids about transmitting sexual images or messages and the potential harm that can be done to the sender's life.

Could a conviction keep a young person from getting a college degree or entering the military or gaining employment? You betcha.

The difference between electronic messages and an old fashioned, handwritten, mail delivered love letter is the electronic message can be forwarded to another phone or Web site.

But whatever happened when a boy, who liked a girl, actually told her that he liked her? Don't see that much anymore.

Instead, we're seeing kids sending each other "selfies," photos of their private parts that shouldn't even be sent to anyone else, EVER.

A lot of mothers and daddys — and their kids — are embarrassed when lewd photos of their children wind up on the Internet or some social web site such as Twitter or Instagram.

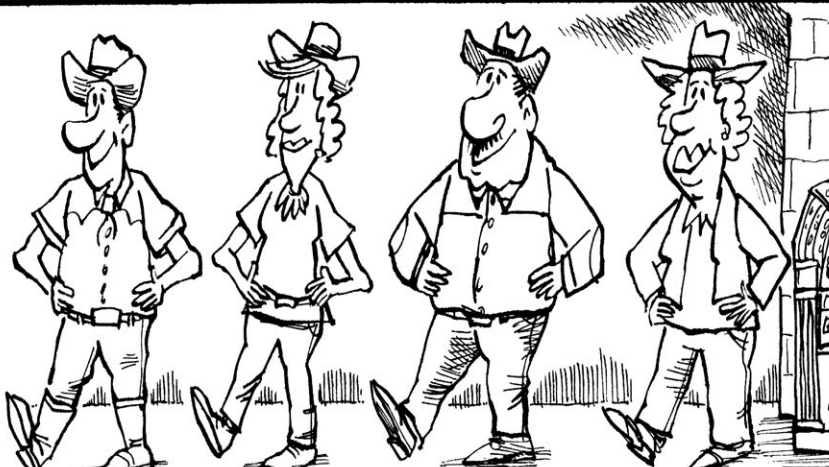

Parents can and should monitor their kids' phones to see what they're sending. They should also sit them down and have "the talk" about not sending any message ever that they might later regret.

Even with all the technology that we have, kids are still kids and need direction.

Parents, don't shy away from this one. Just do it.

Personal directions sometimes better than a GPS

I was remembering an old story the other day about a businessman barreling through the countryside in his Lincoln Town Car. The guy is hopelessly lost and stops in a little one horse town he happens upon, pulling into a service station in the days when service stations were actually service stations. The attendant saunters out, chewing on a straw, and asks the man what he needs.

"I'm lost," the businessman confesses.

The gas station attendant squints at the driver and asks, "Do you know where you are?"

"Yeah," the businessman says, "I saw the name as I drove into town."

"Well, sir, do you know where you're going?" the attendant further inquires.

"Yes, yes, of course" the driver answers, growing impatient with the questions.

"Well," drawled the service station worker, "if you know where you are, and you know where you want to be, then mister, you ain't lost, you just need directions."

Sometimes directions come from the most unlikely sources.

Driving through Southeast Texas, I had made a wrong turn somewhere between Cleveland and Cut and Shoot. The sun had dropped to a distant glow as I traveled westward, and the September heat was napping on an eerie, yellowish hue, enveloping my Ford F-150 like a fog straight out of Rod Serling's "Twilight Zone."

Let me back up. Years ago, I accepted a position with an evangelistic organization that I quickly became convinced would go belly up. Unwilling to move my family to their location, I was commuting 6-7 hours each week, staying home as late as possible before leaving, often driving through the night and straight to work.

One afternoon, my family and I having grinned and giggled our way through Mel Brooks' "Young Frankenstein," we said our goodbyes, and I, heavy hearted, backed out of our driveway, turning west, when I spied Dave, then age 8, in my rear view mirror, running toward me, yelling something.

Stopping, I rolled down my window and heard him mimicking the stilted, guttural sounds of Peter Boyle, the monster in "Young Frankenstein," singing, "Puttin' on the Ritz."

How did Dave know I needed to laugh?

I did, and then driving away, I cried.

It was later, down the road that it happened. With that musty film blanketing my truck, I thought I could hear Rod Serling voicing over the DJ on my radio: "David Whitlock thought he was driving to Dallas, Texas, but having made a wrong turn, he has just entered... The Twilight Zone."

Was the Voice narrating my life journey? Describing my geographical location? Or both?

Trying to ignore the Voice in my head, I focused on the road map, not the road. And that's when my right front tire hit something — a rock? a curb? — causing my tire to meet a most untimely death.

Now, I'd not changed a tire since driver's training. But I didn't have to worry about it: The husband of the dear little lady from whom I had recently bought the truck suffered from Alzheimer's, and between the time I had inspected the vehicle for purchase and actually acquired it, he had removed the spare tire and hidden it. Later, she and I would laugh about this, but that night, somewhere in the Twilight Zone between Cleveland and Cut and Shoot, there was no hint of a smile on my face.

I tried calling AAA; there is no cell service in the Twilight Zone.

It was beginning to rain when a pick-up truck loaded with about 150 Hispanics mercifully stopped long enough for me to hop aboard, and there I was, traveling with them, crushed between a large, bosomy grandmother and her several sniffing grandchildren — all singing in Spanish. I hummed along.

"Buena suerte," they happily shouted as I jumped from the slow moving vehicle in the direction of a convenience store in the middle of nowhere.

I guzzled stale coffee while waiting for my only hope. Only one man in these parts could find a tire for me at this hour, the store manager informed me.

"He usually comes by about this time. Don't know about tonight, though, seeing that it's raining."

"That's comforting," I thought. "How will I know him?" I asked.

"You'll know him," he smirked, "looks a lot like Gomer Pyle."

The manager was right. "Gomer" was tall, lanky, wore a crooked cap, and bobbed his neck in front of his body as he walked.

"Overthere, maybe you'll find one," Gomer told me as we walked through his junk yard, which doubled as the front and back yard of his house.

Tripping over tires in the darkness, surrounded by a Transylvanian like fog, I suddenly had a horrible thought, "What if this was all a charade? What if the convenience store owner and Gomer are partners in crime? Even serial killers. And no one has a clue where I am."

"Oh God," I prayed,

"don't let Gomer kill me. Get me out of here."

"That should do," Gomer said as he finished changing my tire.

He wouldn't let me pay him.

"You've had a hard night, just stop by sometime when you're this way again."

And his kindness continued, "Now, let me give you some directions out of here."

"Directions out," I whispered, "a gift from the Lord."

Miles down the road and deep into the night, I stopped at a Waffle House.

I slowly breathed in the aroma of bacon and eggs frying as the early morning crew hustled in, ready for a new day. Ignited by the promise of a crisp, fresh morning, I suddenly felt a surge of energy, and picturing Dave singing "Puttin' on the Ritz," I filled in the lines, "If you're blue and you don't know where to go to why don't you go..."

And so I did go, forward and onward — thanks to Dave singing and Gomer helping.

And closing my eyes, I let the pancakes slowly melt in my mouth.

Lavitt responds

Lavitt, in a telephone interview on Aug. 29, said that it's not secret as to who the "unqualified teacher" is that he refers to in the lawsuit.

"He's not a party to our lawsuit, this John Price, and he doesn't need to be made a party," Lavitt said. Price is the son of Terry Price, who works as the District Assessment Coordinator in the BOE office.

"He will be a part of the evidence, he'll be a part of our proof but it's no secret. I didn't keep his name from the complaint or from the lawsuit because it was a secret," Lavitt said. Lavitt also said that it was because of Price's connections at the BOE office and with Kathy Fogle that he got the job.

"The culprits are the defendants that we named but he received the benefit of the political conspiracy of the two defendants. It's his connections with the central office and with the middle school principal that caused him to receive the benefit of the hiring and that's exactly what occurred," Lavitt said.

Another question concerning Price has to do with his being cited on Aug. 27 for cultivation of marijuana, less than five plants, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Casey County School Superintendent Marion Sowders suspended Price

from his teaching duties pending an administrative investigation.

Lavitt said that the BOE didn't sufficiently look into Price's background before they hired him.

"If they'd done its homework, they could have looked into the records of the Casey County Circuit Court Clerk's office and determined that's not the first allegation against him with respect to drugs," Lavitt said. "The records of the Casey County Circuit Clerk's office show allegations that in my opinion were substantiated concerning his use of drugs," he said.

However, a search of the records in the circuit clerk's office failed to show any previous drug charges against Price.

Additionally, Sowders said that each candidate for employment undergoes a criminal background check and Sowders said that he wasn't aware of any allegations of drug charges that would have disqualified Price as a candidate.

Huff said that although she doesn't see every background check on board employees, the superintendent usually speaks with her if there's any question about a candidate's criminal history.

"There was nothing in the criminal background check which precluded employment in the school district," she said.

Qualifications

And as to Price being "unqualified," and hired under an emergency certificate, as the suit alleges, Huff said that's not true.

"The candidate selected for the position has an alternative certificate awarded per KRS 161.048, not an "emergency" certificate," Huff said.

The Kentucky General Assembly established alternative routes by which a teacher — who has demonstrated exceptional work and educational experiences — may earn certification, according to the Education Professional Standards Board, the state agency that establishes standards and procedures for the alternative route options.

When asked if the plaintiffs will drop the suit if Price is terminated by the board, Lavitt said that his clients have a right to damages.

"These two plaintiffs, each of whom are highly qualified, one is Rank I and one is Rank II, these two women have a right to recover damages for what they've been through for the failure of the BOE with the help of the middle school principal to claim damages against those people for their involvement in using political means to hire an unqualified candidate over these exceptionally qualified science teachers," Lavitt said.

they probably made less in the last three or four years. I'm making less money now than I was four or five years ago and I'm sure there's a lot of other people the same way," Cox said.

Member Anthony Edwards said that he had opposed the increase in recent years but could not oppose it this year.

"The reason I voted for the tax increase is because of all the state and federal cuts that most people don't hear about, or they don't pay attention to," Edwards said.

Chairman Ken Coffman said that Casey County was falling in line with what surrounding counties are doing by raising the rate.

"Just about everybody's taking the 4 percent increase," he said.

Board member Marilyn

Coffey said the board must continue to practice what it has in years' past.

"I think as long as we're doing the very best we can and we actively pursue all the savings that we can, and we're sure that we're using the money the very best way that we can, we can continue to look at things like energy savings and looking at things like staffing policies to make sure we're being wise about that," she said.

The move raises the current tax rate from 41.4 cents per $100 assessment for both real and personal property to a 4 percent rate of 43.5 cents per $100 assessment for fiscal year 2014.

That translates to an increase of $10.50 annually for property owners assessed at $50,000 and $21 for those owning property valued at $100,000.

The increase in revenue from the tax will amount to approximately $128,000 in FY14, said Deena Randolph, Director of District Wide Services., in the Aug. 12 meeting. Had the board chosen the compensating rate, only $44,000 would have been raised.

The General Fund tax levied in FY13 from the 41.4 cent rate generated $2,147,606.

The proposed FY14 tax rate increase of 4 percent to 43.5 cents is expected to produce $2,275,748, Randolph said.

Legislative NewsNew district lines bring state senator back to Casey County

Hello. I'm Jimmy Higdon, and I am excited to be back representing you, this time as your new state Senator.

You may be wondering how this has happened, especially since my friend, Senator Chris Girdler, has served you well, so let me explain. After each U.S. Census, it is the Constitutional duty of the state legislature to realign voting districts according to population shifts. This week, we did just that as the Senate and the House passed legislation that drew new district lines. While it's never easy to draw new districts, the Senate plan had input from both the majority and minority caucus. It was of particular concern to the Senate that each district be treated fairly, respecting the will of the voters by not pairing elected legislators, by not splitting precincts and dividing as few counties as possible.

Rest assured, I will work hard to represent your needs in the Capitol. I was elected to the Kentucky Senate in 2009 during a Special Election after having served in the House of Representatives from 2003 – some of you may remember I was your state representative for seven years.

Over the next few weeks, I will be visiting each of my counties and look forward to getting to know you better. In the meantime, please know I have a very open door policy of legislating – feel free to call my office or home any time. It is my hope we will have a smooth redistricting transition and will be able to hit the ground running in our efforts together.

JIMMY HIGDON

While the focus this week was redistricting, there were other important issues being discussed as well. To save taxpayers' dollars, we held the interim joint committee meetings for the month of August during this one week, too. Some of the issues presented to the committees include testimony on the various uses of drones and unmanned aerial vehicles, including the development of weather tracking drones through the University of Kentucky NASA Kentucky Space Grant and EP-SCoR Programs that may one day allow scientists to know sooner when a tornado or earthquake will strike. Additionally, we heard testimony on the impact of Kentucky's oil and gas industry on the state's economy. As always, it is good to get more information on issues that might affect you.

Again, I appreciate your input, so please call me in Frankfort toll-free at 1-800-372-7181 or my home at 270-692-6945 if you have any questions, concerns, or comments. Remember, you can visit the Kentucky Legislature Home page at www.lrc.state.ky.us for more information on committee assignments, meeting schedules and more.

Push to go digital threatens future of Stanford Drive-In

It's a warm August weekend and the cars have lined up like they do nearly every weekend at the Stanford Drive-In as people socialize, munch on some snacks and settle in for a double feature.

Inside a room few moviegoers ever see, Michael Carpenter is watching the movie in a more literal sense. He's watching as miles of 35-millimeter film spin off a giant film reel as big as his torso and wind past a whirling projector that takes up as much space as another human — and is probably older than most of the people outside watching.

"I'll kind of miss the old way," he said. "It takes all the nostalgia of operating old projectors when you just have a projector there and you stick a disc in or a satellite feed or whatever and you hit play and it just goes," he told The Interior-Journal.

Carpenter is referring to the coming digital switchover — a fuzzy but fast-approaching line in the sand when the major movie distribution studios will no longer offer new movies on 35-millimeter film.

Moving away from the old, iconic 35-millimeter film reels is a major hurdle for the continued survival of the Stanford Drive-In, as well as other drive-ins, because a new digital projector for a drive-in-sized screen can run $75,000-$80,000, said Denise Pike, owner of the drive-in.

"It's just not every day that a person can pull $75,000 out of their pocket," Pike said.

Pike's preferred solution to the projector problem is a unique one — winning a nationwide contest among drive-in theaters to claim one of five digital projectors being offered for free by Honda.

Honda says its Project Drive-In is an effort to preserve America's drive-ins as the digital switchover threatens to take them out. Besides offering the five free projectors, Honda is collecting donations to fund more digital upgrades.

The projectors are being awarded based on the number of votes each theater can amass from its fans. Every person can vote twice a day through Sept. 9 — once online and once via text message, Pike said.

Pike said if she doesn't win a projector from Honda, she will have to "weigh my options" and figure out whether she can afford to pay for the upgrade over "many years."

To vote online for the Stanford Drive-In in Honda's Project Drive-In competition, visit www.stanforddrivein.com or www.projectdrivein.com/vote_74.

To vote by text message, text "vote74" to 444-999.

Officials welcome auto parts maker to Russell Springs

The Kentucky Press News Service reported that state, local and company officials gave an official welcome celebration for Dr. Schneider Automotive Systems Inc. on August 28. The Germany-based automotive supplier is establishing a manufacturing operation in Russell Springs, creating 155 full-time jobs and investing more than $29 million in Kentucky.

"Dr. Schneider Automotive Systems is a world-class company with plants all over the globe," Gov. Steve Beshear said in a statement. "We are excited to have Dr. Schneider in the Commonwealth, and we welcome the 155 jobs and $29 million investment in Russell Springs. This is a company with a rich history and a promising future, and we're especially happy to see it join our thriving auto industry."

The 85-year-old family enterprise is a pioneer in the processing of plastics, and produces vent and trim systems for automotive original equipment manufacturers around the world. To meet increasing customer demand, the company is establishing a wholly-owned U.S. subsidiary in Russell Springs, where the plant will manufacture parts for companies such as Ford, GM, BMW, Mercedes and Volkswagen.

The location of Dr. Schneider further strengthens Kentucky's automotive industry, which includes more than 450 motor vehicle-related facilities. At the mid-year point for 2013, Kentucky ranked third in light vehicle production in the United States and first on a per capita basis, according to a news release from the governor's office.

As a German-owned company, Dr. Schneider increases Kentucky's foreign direct investment presence. There are approximately 60 German-based companies with facilities in Kentucky, employing more than 8,300 people. Kentucky maintains economic development offices in Hamburg, Germany and Tokyo, Japan, which work to cultivate new and existing relationships abroad for the state.

Vacant Danville motel concerns officials

The Advocate-Messenger reported that the Danville-Boyle County Economic Development Partnership discussed the boarded up Country Hearth Inn at its meeting Aug. 28.

Danville Mayor Bernie Hunstad inquired about progress with the vacant motel, which sits at the corner of Hustonville Road and the bypass, and asked how long it will remain in its current state.

"It's kind of an eyesore," he said. "I don't think it's acceptable as is, especially because we don't have any end date."

Jody Lassiter, president and chief executive officer of the EDP, said two lawsuits are delaying development of the property.

"One lawsuit has already been pending a year, and now there's another one," he said.

Reno's Roadhouse filed the most recent suit, claiming the motel had erected concrete barriers that limit access to the restaurant from Hustonville Road.

Lassiter said wooden planks were put in the motel windows to ensure no unlawful entry was made into the property.

The board expressed an interest in painting the wooden planks in order to improve the aesthetic quality of the space until something can be done to it.

Lassiter said he would express Hunstad's concerns about the aesthetic condition of the building and suggest painting the planks to the owner.

If the lawsuits are settled in a timely manner, Lassiter said there is a plan to put the space to "1,000 percent better use." However, he could not disclose what the plan is at this time.

For now, Lassiter said the board just has to ride it out.

"I'm not aware of anything else to do," he said.

UK spending $5 million on security system

According to the Lexington Herald-Leader, the University of Kentucky is spending nearly $5 million to assemble a campus security system that relies heavily on 2,000 surveillance cameras, raising questions among some privacy advocates.

Other elements of the system include student ID cards that can track when students enter buildings after hours and the ability to lock down buildings from another location.

The system also includes 26 new "Blue Phone" locations with video cameras, as well as early-warning speakers for crises such as weather emergencies, which will augment the UK Alert system of email, text and phone messages.

"This will allow us unprecedented capability for monitoring the campus for crime and protecting our students, employees and visitors in the event of emergencies, including natural disasters or large-scale acts of criminal behavior," said UK Police Chief Joe Monroe.

The university has hired Next Level Security Systems to install the system. The cameras won't be continually monitored by a person, but video analytics software can detect a strange or unexpected movement, then send an automatic alarm to a dispatch center.

Student IDs will now be used to swipe into most buildings on campus, including dorms. For example, a classroom building will stay open all day, but if a student wanted to use the building at night, they would use their ID to unlock the door.

Monroe declined to say how long the new system would store surveillance information, but said it would not be long, nor would any information be used to track students.

After the shooting at Virginia Tech in 2007, most universities upgraded their emergency notification plans, said Chris Blake of the International Association of Campus Law Enforcement in West Hartford, Conn.

"A number of campuses have purchased TV systems and have cameras on various locations around campuses," Blake said. "But with closed circuit TV cameras, there are areas you can film and areas you probably shouldn't."

How to get paid for being a family caregiver

Dear Savvy Senior,
I have been taking care of my elderly mother for nearly three years and it's taking a huge toll on my finances. Are there any resources you know about that can help family caregivers get paid?

Financially Exhausted

Dear Exhausted,
To get paid as a family caregiver, there are various government programs, tax breaks and family payment options that may be able to help you, depending on your mom's financial situation. Here's where to look for help.

State Aid

If your mom is low-income and eligible for Medicaid, you may be able to get paid a small amount by the state. In 15 states, Medicaid offers a Cash and Counseling program (see cashandcounseling.org) that provides an allowance that can be used for various services, including paying family members for care.

Many other states have similar programs for low-income seniors, even if the person receiving care doesn't quite qualify for Medicaid. To find out about these options contact your local Medicaid office.

Veterans Aid

In some communities across the U.S., veterans who are at risk of nursing home placement can enroll in the Veteran-Directed Home and Community Based Services program, that allows veterans to manage their own care, including hiring and paying their own caregivers.

Also available to wartime veterans and their spouses, is a benefit called Aid and Attendance that helps pay for in-home care, as well as assisted living and nursing home care. This benefit can also be used to pay family caregivers.

To be eligible your mom must need assistance with daily living activities like bathing, dressing or going to the bathroom. And, her income must be under $13,362 as a surviving spouse – minus medical and long-term care expenses. If your mom is a single veteran, her income must be below $20,795 to be eligible. Her assets must also be less than $80,000 excluding her home and car.

To learn more see va.gov/geriatrics, or contact your regional VA office, or your local veterans service organization. For contact information, call 800-827-1000.

Tax Breaks

Uncle Sam may also be able to help if you pay at least half of your mom's yearly expenses, and her annual income was below $3,900 in 2013 (not counting Social Security). If so, you can claim her as a dependent on your taxes, and reduce your taxable income by $3,900. See IRS Publication 501 (www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/p501.pdf) or call the IRS help-line at 800-829-1040 for information.

If you can't claim your mom as a dependent, you may still be able to get a tax break if you're paying at least half her living expenses including her medical and long-term care costs, and they exceed 10 percent (or 7.5 percent if you're 65 or over) of your adjusted gross income. You can include your own medical expenses in calculating the total. See the IRS publication 502 (www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/p502.pdf) for details.

Family Payments

If your mom doesn't financially qualify for the government aid or the tax breaks, can she afford to pay you herself or do you have any siblings that would be willing to chip in? After all, if your mom had to pay for home care services, the costs would be anywhere between $12 and $25 per hour.

If she agrees to pay you, it's best that you or an attorney draft a short written contract detailing your work and payment arrangements so every one involved knows what to expect. A contract will also help avoid potential problems should your mom ever need to apply for Medicaid for nursing home care.

Another payment option to consider is for your mom to adjust her will, so you receive a larger portion of her estate for providing her care. But to avoid conflict, be sure all family members are aware and in agreement.

Also, check to see if your mom has any long-term care insurance that covers in-home care. If she does, in some cases those benefits may be used to pay you.

Enjoying westerns, old movies on TV 34

Originally published in the Aug. 31, 1983 issue of The Casey County News

To begin with, we are a great fan of TV 34 at Campbellsville. We not only get a good picture at Eubank with an indoor antenna, we have installed outside, but it is the first station we know of to shy away from 20-hour sports. No one minds a weekly ballgame or so but when it comes to taking up an entire Saturday afternoon and Sunday afternoon with every conceivable kind of artificial made-up game going under the guise of sports, it is too, too much.

TV 34 brings on a good many older movies. Let it be known at this time that there is nothing wrong with old movies. The great majority of them are 11 times better viewing than the modern oddball movie.

We only have one complaint about TV 34. That is not enough full length western movies. Of course, everybody has his or her own choices about the matter, but me, I’d rather see more horse operas. Of the 50 years or so movies have been filmed, there must have been 17,000 westerns made, so the supply is endless. And there are some really good westerns, such as Stagecoach and the stories of Louis LaMour.

True, TV 34 has some westerns such as Wild, Wild West and Gunsmoke. We appreciate these, but unfortunately we get home from work too late to watch them. We even enjoy Three Stooges and the Beverly Hillbillies as light viewing that doesn’t require one to think or pay extra close attention.

We read in the News-Journal published at Campbellsville that the news crew was to be laid off as the station dropped its long newscasts in favor of short news briefs. That’s bad news and we feel sorry for them. The manager said 40 percent of the station’s revenue was going for the newscasts and that was too large a chunk out of the budget. Also, the paper continued, some members of the camera and production departments may be let go as well, although nothing definite has been made about them. The manager said an independent station’s goal is not to compete with network programming but rather to provide an alternative. This they have done well. The alternative has become better than the network shows.

Editor’s Note: As space allows, The Casey County News will reprint some of the opinion columns written by Earl Randolph, who was a longtime employee of The Casey County News. Randolph currently resides in Eubank, Ky. Stories may be slightly edited.

All Kentucky kindergartners to be screened

By Barry Lee
Casey County Schools

Casey County Schools, along with all Kentucky kindergarten programs, are implementing a state-wide common kindergarten entry screener for the first time. The Brigance Kindergarten Screener will measure students' readiness for school and paint a clearer picture of what is being done well and where improvements need to be made.

Research shows that exposure to high-quality learning environments and developmentally appropriate experiences from birth to 5 years are critical for children to achieve success in kindergarten.

Local schools and the Casey County Early Childhood Council can now utilize the screener data to enhance needed supports and resources for families and early childhood programs in the areas of cognitive, language and motor development for young children in order to promote success in kindergarten.

Data collected in the 2012 pilot indicated that a majority of our children are socially and emotionally ready to succeed as they enter school.

However, many students did not achieve at such high levels in the cognitive, language and motor domains.

This screen represents a snapshot of a child fs abilities at one point in time and does not qualify or disqualify a student for Kindergarten.

Age is the only requirement to enter kindergarten in Kentucky. It does however help identify successes and challenges to help teachers and families know how to best meet their child fs unique needs.

Quick Look:
What is the common entry screener?

Is: a moment in time snapshot of the child fs development

Is not: an gentrance exam h for kindergarten

Is: to be used to help teachers best meet the needs of that child and their class collectively

Is not: to be used for tracking h or labeling children

Every child is eligible for kindergarten once they meet the age requirement. Schools must be ready to meet the needs of all eligible students.

Rebels lose one-point heartbreaker in home opener

By Rita “Peat” Harris
Sports Correspondent

There was little to say after the Rebel football team’s heartbreaking home opener last Friday night. Casey fell to Taylor County, 19-18, after the Cardinals took the lead for the first time with 1:03 remaining in the game.

The Rebels put up a strong first half, leading 18-6 at the break, but failed to convert any points in the second half while giving up 13 to Taylor.

Despite the loss, the team saw increased yardage and first downs from the week before against Garrard County. They also cut their turnovers down from nine in their opening week to only three on Friday.

“They’re doing everything I asked them to do. They fought. I hope they recognize we’re doing things the right way and we’re right there,” Coach Sam Marple said immediately following the game. “I told them how much we closed the gap on them from the same team that ran us off the field last year.”

After their opening loss to Garrard County on Aug. 23, Marple indicated freshmen may be moved into the varsity rotation and Friday saw several freshmen step up in big ways.

“I thought the freshmen stepped up on a really big stage and made some really big plays, Marple said. “It’s hard when you lean so much on freshmen, but the older guys, they didn’t complain. When we gave the freshmen the ball, the upper classmen went out there and blocked for them. It was a team effort.”

Freshman Collin Miller put up Casey’s first points of the season with a 17-yard run at 5:21 in the first quarter. The drive began when Casey recovered a Cardinal fumble on the Casey 20-yard line.

Junior Luke Patterson rounded out the play, adding on the extra point to bring the score 7-0.

Taylor had a short run on their next drive, thanks to the Rebel line.

Casey recovered possession and began moving the ball down the field, picking up several first downs before a penalty put them in a fourth-and-10 situation on Taylor’s 22-yard.

0, to start the second quarter.

Taylor responded to the 10-point deficit immediately. Their second snap of the quarter saw a Cardinal break free from Casey’s 25-yard line.

Senior Brandon Luna ran down the Cardinal, but not before the ball had moved into the red zone.

Two plays later Taylor had its first six points. The extra point attempt was blocked, making the score 10-6 with 9:21 remaining in the half.

Giving up their first points of the game lit a fire under the Rebels and momentum continued in their favor.

Despite an off-sides penalty on their first snap, two plays later Miller broke free from the 43-yard line and made his second trip to the end zone.

Senior Wyatt Bishop carried the ball across the line for the two-point conversion and Casey extended their lead to 18-6, with 8:54 in the quarter remaining.

Taylor’s next drive began at their 38-yard line. Slow but steady progress moved them down the field, until they found themselves in a fourth down situation on Casey’s 21-yard line.

The Cardinals went for the four necessary yards and earned a first down, but a fumble on the following play saw Casey take possession with 4:38 on the clock.

Despite picking up yardage, Casey saw a couple of penalties during their drive and found themselves at fourth-and-25.

Taylor took over at their own 40-yard line for the final drive of the half, but Kyle Eads sent Casey to the locker room on a high note, intercepting a fourth down pass at the 30-yard line for the final play of the half.

Second half

Effort did not cease in the second half, but the momentum from the first half no longer played in Casey’s favor, as their first two drives ended in fumbles.

Their opening drive began on their own 35 but seven plays later the Rebels fumbled, turning over possession on Taylor’s 33-yard line.

Taylor also had difficulty gaining much yardage. They moved the ball 13 yards before the Rebel line forced the Cardinals to kick.

Junior Micco Randell returned the punt, starting Casey’s next drive on their 36. Three plays in the Rebels again fumbled and lost possession, allowing Taylor to take over with good field possession at the 34-yard line.

The Cardinals hit paydirt in a matter of three plays. They tacked on the extra point to bring the score to 18-13 with 5:41 in the third quarter.

Defense came to the forefront of play the remainder of the game. The teams held each other from little offensive progress over the next several drives.

Casey responded to the Cardinal touchdown by running some time off of the clock but accomplished little else. Casey was forced to kick on fourth down and the Cardinals regained possession on their own 20-yard line.

The Rebel defense responded and halted any movement by Taylor. The Cardinals were unable to move the ball 10 yards on the first drive and kicked. Casey took over at the 50-yard.

Unfortunately, Casey saw a similar drive of their own. It was over in four short plays. Possession was again Taylor’s early in the fourth quarter. It was short lived when Casey forced a fumble two plays later, and recovered to begin a drive from Taylor’s 47.

The offense, in need of points to make it a two-possession game, got out of a fourth down close call when a pass from Patterson to Miller was successful. The Rebels were immediately in a similar fourth down in a situation on the 32-yard line. They again attempted a pass-play, but it was intercepted, shutting down the drive.

With 6:51 to play, Taylor took over at their own 39-yard line. Nine plays later, they had moved inside the red zone. The Cards were first-and-goal when Rebel upper classmen stepped up.

Senior Rance Carman and Junior Jaylan Waddle led big defensive plays that pushed Taylor County back. Casey’s momentum then led to a Cardinal false start penalty and an incomplete pass that put them in fourth and goal from the 21-yard line at just over a minute to play.

“Those two little guys, for their size, if they were five inches taller they’d be the two best linebackers you’d watch play football,” Marple said. Needing five points to tie or take the lead, the Cardinals bypassed a field goal attempt and instead went for a pass play. The ball slipped through the hands of the intended receiver; however, a second Cardinal dove for the falling ball and made contact in the end zone just as it hit the ground.

The questionable reception was accepted by officials, giving Taylor six points and the lead, 19-18.

“I really don’t think they caught that ball in the end zone but it is what it is,” said Marple.

Casey held Taylor from the two-point conversion and took over for their final drive on their on 37-yard line.

In the minute remaining, the Rebels moved the ball to Taylor’s 20-yard line. With time for one remaining play, Casey set up for Patterson to attempt a field goal that could give the Rebels the victory.

Unfortunately, the kick was blocked and there was confusion on the field when a whistle was blown prematurely, causing the play to be repeated.

This time Casey faked the kick and attempted a run, which failed, leaving the Rebels one point shy of a victory.

“We’ve got a long road ahead of us and a hard schedule and somewhere you’ve got to find you a win, and I’d have like to have had that tonight,” Marple said.

Casey racked up 352 yards of offense, 311 of which were rushing.

Bishop led the running game with 129 yards, followed by Miller who had 91. Eads led the defensive side with 15 tackles, followed by Waddle and Carman with 13 and 11 respectively.

Rebel golfers post mixed results

By Rita “Peat” Harris
Sports Correspondent

The Casey County High School golfers are keeping busy with competition as they head into their last month of play before the regional tournament.

The Lady Rebels picked up a win and a loss last week, while the boys fell just short of a win over Boyle County.

Girls

Laura McQueen led Casey to a 168-208 victory over Southwestern Pulaski at Hickory Hills on Aug. 27. McQueen shot a 36, her lowest round of the season.

Emilee Vaughn and Natalie McAninch followed with scores of 40 and 44, respectively.

Catherine McAninch broke the 50 mark by carding a 48. Shelby Salyers and Beth Streeval rounded out the team with scores of 51 and 54.

On Thursday the ladies traveled to Russell County, taking their first loss in several weeks. Casey shot 179 to Russell’s 155.

McQueen and Vaughn led the team, both with scores of 43.

Alyx Streeval, who had been out with a knee injury the previous week, returned to play. Despite being off for a week, she shot the team’s third highest score, a 44.

respectively, while Salyers shot 60.

The team was scheduled to host Adair and Pulaski counties yesterday, but instead traveled to Burnside to play Pulaski.

“We wanted another chance to practice on the regional course,” said Coach Sarah Christian.

Boys

Despite good scores from the top finishing Rebels, Casey came up four strokes shy of a win over the Boyle County Rebels on Aug. 27 at home.

Justin Russell broke the 40-mark and shot a 39 to lead the team. Colton Patterson was only a stroke behind him with a 40.

Hayden Bastin and J.D. Durham shot 45 and 49, respectively, while Ethan Ammons put up Casey’s final score of 59.

Casey traveled to Garrard County yesterday and will host East Jessamine at home on Thursday. They are scheduled to compete in a tournament this Saturday.

SPORTS TALK

Rebels left it all on the field

Fall really seemed to come to life this past weekend, at least for me, despite the continued hot days. September is officially here and college football is underway. On top of that, Casey had its first home football game and nothing makes me happier than seeing the crowd of columbia blue and red in the stands and along the fence line of our home field. Well, I guess a win to go with it would have made me happier.

Whether you were at the game, heard or read about it afterwards or tuned in on the radio, (thank you WKDO for carrying the games again this year), you know what a heartbreaker it was. A one-point loss always is, but add that to having led the entire game, a questionable touchdown that gave Taylor the edge in the last minute, and the real kicker: a fabulous effort on behalf of the Rebels.

I hope the athletes and coaches know what a great showing they made last Friday, despite the “L” that stands next to the final score. From start to finish the game was engaging and exciting for anyone spectating. I was actually supposed to leave for Ohio on Friday evening, but opted to stay home to cover the game live and leave Saturday morning instead and the Rebels definitely made that decision more than worth it.

Yes, there were mistakes and moments when I’d

Rita “Peat” HARRIS
Sports Correspondent

cringe or shout or clench my fists, but seeing both upper and lower classmen make big plays and the team bounce back from mistakes seemed to reveal a spark in Rebel football that I was so hopeful for this season.

The end result may have been a loss but I saw many wins throughout the night that were a turn around from last season. It’s exciting to see the progress of the program and I hope the spark and momentum of the team’s home opener only builds.

Casey, no doubt has a tough schedule ahead, but I am optimistic that despite the competition and win/loss results, the team will not lose that spark they showed developing last Friday.

A loss, but congratulations to Coach Marple, his staff and the team on a great home opener.

Nonetheless, you gave this Rebel fan, and many others I’m sure, a reason to be excited for this coming Friday and the rest of the fall. Keep it up!

NOBODY DOES IT BETTER

Rebel runners have impressive meet

By Rita "Peat" Harris

Sports Correspondent

The summer heat made an appearance for the Casey County cross country team's first official high school meet of the season on Aug. 27.

The runners competed at the Chick-fil-A Invitational in Wilmore, where the team saw three top 20 finishes on the varsity level.

"I was really proud of them.

We were running against a lot of 3A competition," said Coach Jon Vaughn. "It's a big atmosphere out there. We got to see the best of the best."

Kelsey Arthur, Jenna Vaughn and Blake Durham all placed in the top 20 of the varsity 5K race. Both the boys and girls had a full team competing, as opposed to last season. The boys had an eighth place finish and the girls finished in sixth.

Boys

Junior Blake Durham led the boys team, finishing 19th with a time of 19:17.

"Blake's time was a little bit off but I attribute that to the heat because even the first place guy's time wasn't as fast as he can go," Vaughn said.

Freshman Chase Williams came in just over a minute behind Durham with a time of 20:30, followed by eighth grader Noah Brown at 21:25.

The top five finishers for each team contributed to the team score. Jonathan Gillock and Nathaniel Ratliff were the Rebels' fourth and fifth place finishers with Derrick Braymer, a brand new runner, also competing.

"Chase did a lot better. He's really starting to really work hard now. Noah had a rough day but he gutted it out. Jonathan's going to do a lot better soon."

Freshman Drew Lee did not compete due to current back problems.

Girls

The girls' sixth place finish was led by junior Kelsey Arthur, who was the lone varsity runner last season.

Arthur took 13th in a time of 23:25. Seventh grader Jenna Vaughn also finished in the top 20, earning 19th in a time of 25:32.

"I thought Kelsey did really well. She's running as fast as she was last year at the end of the season, or close to it," said Vaughn, adding that he was pleased with Jenna's top 20 finish. He said he hopes to see both runners drop their times to the 21-minute range.

Junior Tiara Cochran competed in her first official 5K and was the team's third runner to finish, with a time of 27:19.

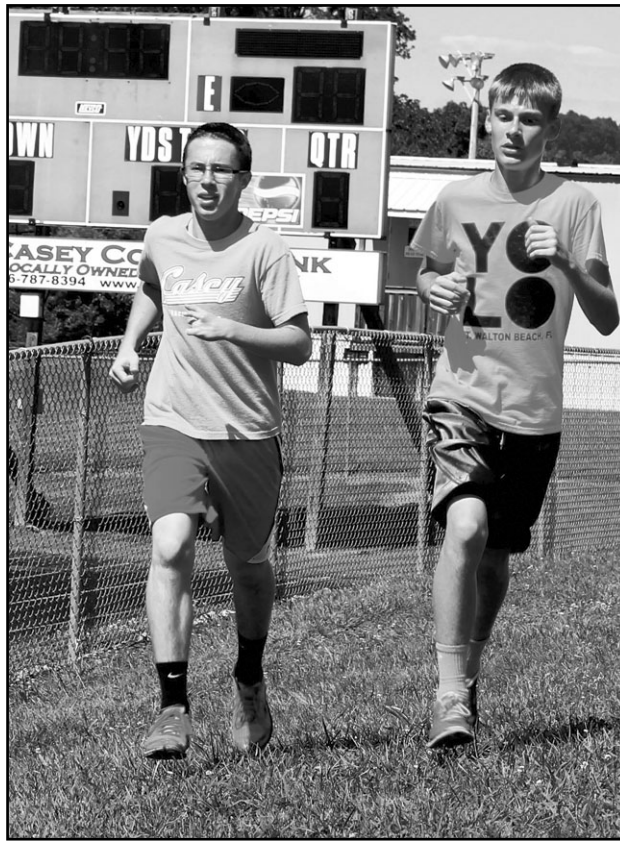

Cochran has been working through an injury as well.

"I think it's almost done," Vaughn said. "She wasn't in pain, I think, but she just hasn't been able to put in the time."

Hallie Byrd, Noel Davison and Breanna Davison rounded out the girls' varsity team.

The middle school team competed in a 1-mile race, where the boys team finished eighth. Laura Cuin was the lone Lady Rebel to compete.

Mitchell Duggins was Casey's top runner finishing in 6:14, with three additional Rebels running times under seven minutes.

Junior Blake Durham and freshman Chase Williams put in miles on Casey's campus with eighth grader Noah Brown shortly behind them. The three were the Rebels' top three finishers at the Chick-fil-A Invitational last week.

Soccer team begins inaugural season

By Rita "Peat" Harris

Sports Correspondent

The first CCHS girls' soccer season is officially underway. The ladies traveled to face the Somerset Briar Jumpers. The Lady Rebels lost 0-6, but Coach Jeremy Franks saw a lot of positives and improvements in just the single game.

"The Lady Rebels played a hard game," Franks said. "The first half they were nervous but the last 10 minutes of the first half and the second half they were playing harder and they were playing as a team."

Casey did manage to keep Somerset from scoring through the first 28 minutes of play of the game, something the coach felt positive about.

"We had great leadership from our captain, Alicia Floyd," Franks said. "I think the Lady Rebels will be ready and playing great team ball in a couple of games."

Sabrina Pennington played the sweeper position in Casey's 4-3-3 lineup for their first game at Somerset.

The game at Danville on Saturday was cancelled due to weather, giving the team more than a week to practice before heading into their next game.

The Lady Rebels will travel to Pulaski County on Saturday to take on the Lady Maroons. Game time is 10 a.m.

Suspended E-911 dispatcher pleads to lesser charge

By Larry Rowell
Editor

A Casey County E-911 dispatcher who was arrested this past spring and charged with distributing obscene material to a minor has pleaded guilty to harassing communications, a misdemeanor. Joshua S. "Josh" Blevins, 28, of 932 Rainwater Road, Bethelridge, appeared in Green County District Court on Aug. 26 before Judge Amy Sullivan Anderson, who sentenced Blevins to 45 days in jail, probated for two years. He is also to have no contact with the victim, he's not to possess obscene materials, nor is he to have any new violations, court documents state. Blevins was arrested on May 10 by Liberty Police Chief Steven Garrett at the Casey County Courthouse on a Green County warrant charging him with distribution of obscene matter to minors, a misdemeanor. The warrant states that between Feb. 1 and Feb. 18, Blevins sent nude photographs of himself and his girlfriend, as well as video of he and his girlfriend having sex, to a minor using a means of electronic communications. "The defendant admitted knowing the victim to be under age 18," the warrant stated. Employed by the county since December 2011, Blevins was suspended without pay after his arrest pending the outcome of the investigation, said Casey County Judge-Executive Ronald Wright. Wright said on Thursday that he was consulting with fiscal court magistrates, the E-911 Board, and County Attorney Tommy Weddle before making a decision about the possibility of Blevin's being reinstated as a dispatcher.

Taken from the Casey County E911 records, Street Beat represents a history of the initial calls and the information used by the dispatcher to send officers to investigate complaints. It is not an indication of what the officers found upon arrival at the scene or how police may have dealt with the complaint.

Liberty police officers investigated two accidents last week involving motorcycles in which one of the drivers was airlifted to a Lexington hospital. On Thursday about 6:50 p.m., Veronica L. Gregg, 27, of 190 Taylor St., Liberty — driving a 2007 Chevy Malibu — was leaving the parking lot of Sav-A-Lot on Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard, said Sgt. Randy Dial. In an attempt to cross

WVB into the Dollar General parking lot, Gregg was hit by a moped headed north and driven by Homer Cochran, 33, of 225 Butcher St., Liberty, Dial said. Cochran, who wasn't wearing a helmet, was taken to Casey County Hospital by Casey EMS. A second accident on Saturday at 2:32 p.m. on Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard in front of Beard's Trading Post sent the driver of a motorcycle to UK Medical Center. Sgt. Randy Dial said that Alicia E. Corman, 33, of 6205 East Fitzgerald Road, Decatur, Ill., was headed south in a 2013 Lincoln MKX when she attempted to turn into Beard's parking lot, striking a 2006 Honda CBR-600RR motorcycle headed north and driven by Denver Taylor, 22, of 599 Green Road, Madison, Ind. Neither Taylor, nor McKayla Goodin, 22, also of Madison, were wearing a helmet. Goodin was treated and released at Casey County Hospital. Taylor remains in serious condition, according to Julie Phillips at UK Medical.

Sgt. Randy Dial investigated a motorcycle accident on Saturday afternoon on U.S. 127 that sent a Madison, Ind. man to a Lexington hospital, where he remains in serious condition.

Ways To Help Friends Dealing With Cancer

A cancer diagnosis is a life altering event for those diagnosed as well as for their friends and family. Unfortunately, cancer occurs far too often. The National Cancer Institute Surveillance Epidemiology and End Results program estimated that in 2009, more than 12.5 million Americans were living with a cancer diagnosis. Breast and prostate cancers were the two most common types. A cancer diagnosis can be very scary for the patient and their family members. As a friend, you may feel helpless and unsure about what you can do, but you can be helpful and supportive in many ways during this time of need. It is important to learn as much as you can about your friend's diagnosis and treatment regimen. Perhaps your friend is willing and able to talk about it, but note that this can be an especially emotional subject and time, especially for those recently diagnosed.

Let them tell you what they want you to know and don't push for more information. You can also learn about a diagnosis from family members, other friends, physicians, helplines and various educational resources. Knowing this information can help you better understand and prepare yourself for the disease and treatments and be more empathic to your friend. Before visiting, call ahead and ask permission. If your friend has recently undergone chemotherapy or radiation, they may be too tired for visitors. Let them know it's okay to say no. If they say no, you may want to make plans to visit in the future when they are feeling better. You can also set up a time to talk weekly on the phone. Let your friend know it's okay if they don't feel like answering when you call. Many times, cancer, its treatment and subsequent emotions can be overwhelming, so it may be hard for your friend to pinpoint ways you can help. Offer to help with specific tasks, such as babysitting, caring for a pet, shopping for groceries, doing laundry or preparing a meal for the family. You may also want to ask a spouse or family member for other things you can do to be helpful. Realize that they may decline your offer and if they do, you shouldn't take it personal. Treat your friend as normal as possible. Offer to go for a walk with them. Talk about mutual hobbies and interests. If you both are interested in crafts, do a project together. Let them know you care and are thinking about them. Also let them know you're there if they ever need to talk. Avoid giving them medical advice. While someone in your family may have had the same diagnosis, each individual's condition and treatment may vary, and their treatment regimen is a decision they should make with guidance from their doctor. Got a Fever?

Your glassy-eyed, flush-faced child walks through the door. Uh-oh! A quick check with the thermometer confirms your suspicions. He has a fever.

For most kids, their body temperature stays the same from day to day - until germs enter the picture. That's when his body starts to fight back, and one of the first things it does is turn up the heat in an effort to get rid of any infection.

For most kids, fevers aren't a big problem. But if a child has a higher fever and feels uncomfortable, the doctor might tell a parent to give the child medicine. The two medicines most often recommended are acetaminophen or ibuprofen. The medicine blocks the chemicals that tell the hypothalamus (the part of the brain that acts as the body's thermostat) to turn up the heat. Kids should never take aspirin to treat a fever because it can cause a rare, but serious, illness.

If a child has a fever, give him more fluids than usual. That's important because as the body heats up, it's easy to get dehydrated, which means there isn't enough water in the body. Good sources of fluids are juice, water, sports drinks, soup, flavored gelatin, and even popsicles.

Say 'Aaaaaahhhh!'

We've all heard it "Mommy, my throat is sore!" But is it just a sore throat, or is it strep throat? Most sore throats - which can be accompanied by a runny nose, cough, hoarseness, and red eyes - are caused by viruses and usually clear up on their own without medical treatment.

But, if it's strep throat, parents will usually start to see other symptoms, such as:

- * red and white patches in the throat
- * difficulty swallowing
- * tender or swollen glands (lymph nodes) in the neck
- * red, enlarged tonsils
- * headache
- * lower stomach pain
- * fever
- * general discomfort, uneasiness, or ill feeling
- * loss of appetite and nausea
- * rash

Sarah Murphy & Haven Jones

If your child has a sore throat and other strep throat symptoms, call your doctor. The doctor will likely do a rapid strep test in the office, using a cotton swab to take a sample of fluids at the back of the throat. If it is strep, in most cases, doctors prescribe about 10 days of antibiotic medication.

To prevent your sick child from spreading strep throat to others, keep her eating utensils, dishes and drinking glasses separate from others' and wash in hot, soapy water after each use. Make sure your child doesn't share food, drinks, napkins, towels, etc., with others; and throw out your child's toothbrush after the antibiotic treatment is started and she is no longer contagious and get her a new one.

And, as always, teach your child to always cover her mouth and nose during a sneeze or a cough to prevent passing infectious fluid droplets to those around her.

Healthy Heart

All her friends are playing soccer, and she wants to play soccer too. But is her heart, and the rest of her, healthy enough for sports?

If your child plays team sports, they most likely will have to have a sports physical, which is a visit to the doctor to make sure you're in good enough shape to play the sport you want to play. There are two main parts to a sports physical - medical history and a physical exam.

The medical history includes questions about illnesses and injuries your child has had, such as asthma or a broken leg. It is important for the doctor to know about medical problems that run in your family, or any medicines the child takes on a daily basis.

During the physical exam, the doctor will measure the child's height, check her weight, take a blood pressure, listen to the heart and lungs, feel the abdomen, look in the child's ears, nose and throat, check her eyesight, and test how strong and flexible she is.

The good news is that almost all kids can play the sports they want to play. If you have a health problem, you can usually take medicine or get treatment that will let you play your sport safely. Even kids with serious health problems often find a sport in which they can participate.

Let's Have a Look

It's midnight, and your little boy is standing by your bed, holding his ear, which hurts - again. Next to the common cold, ear infections are the most commonly diagnosed childhood illness in the U.S. More than three out of four kids have had at least one ear infection by the time they reach age 3.

Kids develop ear infections more frequently in the first two to four years of life, but they can occur anytime. Ear infections occur more commonly in boys than girls, in kids whose families have a history of ear infections, and during the winter season when upper respiratory tract infections or colds are frequent. Signs and symptoms often include a runny or stuffy nose or a cough. Remember, ear infections are not contagious, although the cold that may lead to one can be.

A child who might have an ear infection should visit a doctor, who should be able to make a diagnosis by taking a medical history and doing a physical exam. Depending on the severity, the doctor may, or may not, choose to prescribe antibiotics. Regardless, you can help to reduce the discomfort of an ear infection by using acetaminophen or ibuprofen for pain and fever as needed. Your doctor may also recommend using pain-relieving eardrops as long as the eardrum hasn't ruptured.

While some factors associated with ear infections can't be changed, certain lifestyle choices can minimize the risks. As an infant, breastfeed your baby for at least six months (or if bottle-feeding, never let the child lie flat with a bottle); prevent exposure to second-hand smoke; reduce exposure to large groups of kids; practice good hand-washing; and keep immunizations up-to-date.
